ABSTRACT

This annotated bibliography is intended as a guide to some 370 curriculum and instructional resources in art education located at The Curriculum Resources Center at Rhode Island College (48 books, 123 curriculum guides, 87 non-print media, 101 art prints). The process of identifying and classifying materials in art education led to the acquisition of new materials and an affiliation with the Getty Center for Education in the Arts. The guide has been organized around the four major components of the Discipline-Based Art Education model. The four components are art history, art criticism, aesthetics and production. Other trends in art education have been noted and an attempt was made to enlarge the collection in the areas of art and technology, non-Western art and multicultural education, women in the arts, art and the exceptional child, and health hazards and safety in the art classroom. ## Facilities

The Curriculum Resources Center makes available a number of retrieval, research, and demonstration facilities. A recently added feature is the Microcomputer Demonstration Room. This facility affords Center users the opportunity to examine a sampling of microcomputer software available for use at the elementary and secondary school levels, as well as a variety of word processing and administrative packages.

Other facilities include: microfiche readers, study carrels, audiovisual preview equipment, computer terminal, card catalog, periodical index, topical bibliographies in education, and photocopy machine.

Use of the Center

All Rhode Island educators, as well as graduate and undergraduate students at Rhode Island College, may use the Center facilities and borrow items from the circulating collection for a two-week period. Selected materials, however, are restricted to on-site use.

The Collection

The Curriculum Resources Center houses a sampling of K-12 instructional materials which may be found in schools in Rhode Island, as well as a cross section of instructional material utilized in New England, other sections of the United States, and other English speaking countries. Professional literature in all teaching fields, related periodicals, and a small reference section are also available.

While the core of the collection focuses on subjects normally included in elementary and secondary school curricula, special collections representing area of current concern have been developed. The Center also contains a selection of textbooks of historical interest, dating from the mid-nineteenth century to the twentieth century.

In addition, the Curriculum Resources Center maintains extensive catalog files produced by publishers, manufacturers, professional associations, school departments, universities, and curriculum projects. These files provide patrons with information regarding media beyond that housed in the Curriculum Resources Center.

Services

The Curriculum Resources Center staff provides a wide variety of services to its patrons, including:

- Orientation to the collection and instruction in information retrieval.
- Consultation in curriculum development and IMC organization.
- Circulation of a major part of the collection for use by Rhode Island educators and pre-service teachers.
- Evaluation of instructional media through cooperative arrangements with schools and teachers.
- Referral service in information retrieval.
- Bibliographies of current acquisitions.
- Annotated bibliographies of new curriculum areas and topics of current concern in education.

INTRODUCTION

This annotated bibliography is intended as a guide to curriculum and instructional resources in art education located at The Curriculum Resources Center at Rhode Island College. The process of identifying and classifying materials in art education at the center gave birth to another project: the acquisition of new materials which would reflect current trends in the field. We have since become affiliated with the Getty Center for Education in the Arts and have received many new materials dealing with Discipline-Based Art Education (DBAE). Subsequently, this guide has been organized with the four major components of DBAE in mind: Art History, Art Criticism, Aesthetics and Production. The textbooks, both professional and classroom, have been coded (H,C,A,P) to designate content as it relates to these areas. Other trends in art education have been noted and an attempt has been made to enlarge the collection in these areas. They are art and technology, non-Western art and multicultural education, women in the arts, art and the exceptional child, and health hazards and safety in the art classroom.
